

Hello There! My name is Skye, a professional career coach looking to partner with you to guide you through the next phase in your life - developing a stellar career path. I'm a highly accomplished, success driven Principal Program Manager with 20+ years of multi-industry, multi-discipline experience. At the heart of my coaching is my conviction that through each person's life journey, a nudge from outside of your circle or comfort zone to help uncover your deepest heart's desire, dreams, and goals to find your true voice is necessary to become your best self yet! I have been able to coach leaders, teams and individuals through their personal and professional barriers, create pathways with more purpose and meaning in work and life and improve the balance of personal and professional priorities to sustain change vs the status quo. Breaking through the status quo requires building an alliance and challenging you to bring your experiences, visions and ideas to the conversation and where I bring a deep sense of listening, curiosity and optimism to draw out insights from what I hear and observe. Together, we uncover options and you'll outline paths for change to experiment these paths in the real world. I look forward to working alongside you!
